PLAN YOUR GETAWAY!

Once home of the Jicarilla Apache and Ute Indians, Cimarron, located on the mountain branch of the Santa Fe Trail, became the hub of a mining and ranching empire. The pioneer spirit which gave rise to Cimarron brought famous and infamous people alike. Names like Wyatt Earp, Annie Oakley, Buffalo Bill Cody, Frank & Jesse James have all added to our history. Many of these characters have left their mark on our famous, historic St. James hotel.

In 1864, Land Grant Baron Lucien B. Maxwell built the Aztec Mill to grind flour for Fort Union and the Ute and Apache Indians. Now, this historic landmark houses a collection of photographs and artifacts interpreting local history and is just one of several historic attractions in the Cimarron area.

Cimarron, NM attracts outdoorsmen from all around. At 33,116 acres, the Colin Neblett Wildlife Area is the largest state wildlife area & includes Cimarron Canyon State Park. The Cimarron River traverses the canyon past the sheer cliffs of the Palisades. Picnic areas and campgrounds are located within the Canyon. Hiking, hunting and fishing are popular, as is watching the abundant deer, elk and other wildlife. This is just one of the several public lands available in Cimarron.

Also notable in Cimarron is the Philmont Scout Ranch, which is the largest Scout ranch in the world. This land was donated to the Boy Scouts of America in 1938 by oilman Waite Phillips. Philmont is the BSA's National Training Center and premier High Adventure Base, hosting nearly 25,000 Scouts, explorers and leaders annually. Tourists love to visit the four museums that are open to the public at Philmont.

Whether you're coming to Cimarron for relaxation and beauty, to experience the many artists and galleries, to partake in the many outdoor activities available, or to gaze back in time at our nation's unruly, early days in the west, you will truly find Cimarron to be a place of enchantment.
